HARRIS CONFESSES TO FORGING NAME

Says He Imitated Representative Kinkaid's Signature and Secured $23.

To the charge of forgery of the name of Representative Moses P. Kinkaid of Nebraska, to a check for $23, Robert L. Harris today pleaded guilty and was bound over under $1,000 bond for the grand jury.

Harris was employed by Representative Kinkaid to address envelopes in his office and learned the signature of the Congressman. He got the money on one check for $23 and on one check for $23. Another check for $23 was refused at the same saloon which cashed the first one. The saloonkeeper had heard from the sergeant-at-arms of the House in the meantime.

AEROPLANE FLIGHT DEPENDS ON WIND

black and it looked as though a thunderstorm might break. The storm passed and still the delay continued.

The Wright brothers were less concerned about the distinguished spectators than the Signal Corps officers. The latter, fully aware of the necessity of making a good impression in order that appropriations in the future might be forthcoming, noted the uneasiness in the Congressional crowd and the signal corps organized little excursion parties to the machine where detailed explanations were entered into. One of these groups expressed desire to meet the Wrights and they had descended on Wilbur before the aviator knew where he was at.

Snub the Senators.

He acknowledged introductions to two or three Senators and then without waiting to meet the others pushed his way through the crowd, grasped the arm and walked to the balloon shed a quarter of a mile away. There they remained until, half an hour later, the field had been cleared again.

Upon his reappearance Wilbur noted that the crowd was impatient to see the machine in action, but he was not at all concerned.

"The crowd seems to be pretty," he remarked, nodding his head in the direction of the Senators, Representatives, diplomats, and others.

"Do you know what I did in France when the crowd was so big?" I took the machine back to the shed and let them fret."

Crowd Goes Home.

A short time later the machine was taken back to the shed. The crowd did not fret. It went home very disappointed. Old veterans of the civil war made some terse comments.

"That machine is to revolutionize warfare is it?" asked one Senator. "Well it's a great satisfaction to know that all wars in the future will be postponed until the wind has blown down." "Jim" Tawney, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, expressed considerable interest in the machine, and when he saw 200 or 300 people looking it over he decided to do likewise. A trooper promptly ordered him back of the ropes. Mr. Tawney obeyed the order and later in the afternoon declined to be escorted to the machine by an outsider who seemed to have entered to the parade ground.

When the flight was called off some one remarked to Wilbur: "Wright, this is ridiculous," said Wright. "This is a new machine that never has been off the ground and I don't want to take any chances until it has been tried out. We do not want to try it out until the conditions are ideal for a flight."

Aviation in University.

PARIS, June 29.—The University of Paris has announced two donations in the interests of aviation. The first is $100,000 from Henry Deutsch-Delamare, fourth of the Contador family, member of technical aeronautics, and the second, $100,000, from Basil Zakaroff, a Greek resident of Paris, for the foundation of a chair of aviation.

SUICIDE OF CHILD EIGHTH REPORTED

PARIS, June 29.—The authorities were shocked today by the discovery of the body of fourteen-year-old Louise Vouaux, in the canal, making the eighth child suicide recorded this month.

The papers have sought scientific explanation of this series of developments, suicidal mania on the part of children and much has been written about it, with little or no consensus of opinion. The theory most accepted is that this shocking record for the month is the result of the power of suggestion given through the publicity of the child suicides and is attributable to the defective mentality becoming more and more prevalent among a portion of the Paris poor.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming has appealed to the President in behalf of Ethel Donovan, until recently postmistress at Deltz, Wyo. She was convicted of embezzlement in connection with the issuance of money orders and sentenced to six months in jail. Mr. Mondell brought papers to show that eight of the jurors who pronounced her guilty have since declared their belief that the woman had no intention of committing a crime. The case was referred to the Department of Justice.

LAST ACT IN TRAGEDY OF EASTERN SHORE

Jury Draws Curtain and Shows Kindness to Memory of Eastman by Declaring That He May Have Been Only an Accessory to Crime.

ST. MICHAEL'S, Md., June 29.—With the verdict of the coroner's jury yesterday that Mrs. Edith May Thompson Woodill was murdered by Robert E. Eastman single-handed or that he was an accessory to the crime, this little town has begun to settle down to its accustomed quiet.

In the judgment of a great majority of the people of this section, the jury took occasion to be unusually kind to the memory of Eastman when it declared that he might have been only an accessory. Nothing was brought out at the hearing before the jury to give a scintilla of support to Eastman's claim that she was killed by a drunken woman, and all the circumstantial evidence, which was very strong, indicated that Eastman alone was the murderer.

Among those who testified yesterday none except the man's widow told any thing new. Mrs. Eastman, who is known on the stage as Miss Vivian Bradcombe, was heard when the jury was in session at McDaniels after having made a tour of inspection of the Eastman bungalow and the surrounding grounds.

She repeated again and again her belief that Eastman told the truth in the letter he left for her, declaring that he had not killed Mrs. Woodill, but had been left by members of his bungalow party to remove the evidences of the murder. She could, however, give no reason for her belief, except that she did not see why he would have written the letter when he was so near death unless it had been the truth.

Mrs. Eastman said her husband's only living relatives were two half-sisters, but that he was not on good terms with them. He, she said, had been married in California before she knew him, and his wife had died. She said she had several times heard him threaten suicide when he was in financial trouble.

The final session of the coroner's jury did not establish any motive for the killing. In spite of Mrs. Eastman's belief that her husband had never known Mrs. Woodill before he met her here a month ago, the theory of the authorities of the county is that she had been giving him money, that she came to the place where she could give him no more and that her refusal to do so resulted in her death.

FIRE CAUSES PANIC AMONG PATIENTS VIRGINIA GUARDS TO GO FOR MARCH

Blaze in New York School Company G Will Leave Alexandria for Trip Next Saturday Evening.

NEW YORK, June 29.—A fire early today in the Baron de Hirsch Trade School, 222 and 224 East Sixty-fourth street, caused a panic among 146 patients in the Manhattan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital across the street, created consternation among the inmates of the Clara de Hirsch Home for Working Girls, adjacent, and routed out a number of families living in tenements back of the school building.

The fire, which was on the third story of the school building, broke out after minor damage, but there were scenes of terror in the crowded district before firemen had the situation in hand. William Bremner, night clerk of the hospital, discovered the fire. The windows of the school building were belching forth smoke, and although patients went from ward to ward assuring the patients that there was no danger, many of the inmates of the hospital refused to be calmed.

A still alarm was sent in and when the police arrived they sent in a general alarm. The girls' school was aroused. A fire drill was set in motion, and the girls marched to the ground floor.

The crowded tenements back of the school building were cleared by policemen.

STRIKE DEADLY WALL IN HUNT FOR LEON

Believed That Supposed Murderer Has Slipped Meshes of Police.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The trained and expert sleuths of this city, aided by the detectives of every city in the United States, practically admit today that they have proved no match for the elusive Oriental and that Leging Ling, the supposed murderer of Elsie Sigel, has slipped between the meshes of their nets and passed beyond their reach.

It is conceded that there is practically no hope now of apprehending the Celestial, in whose room the granddaughter of General Sigel, the civil war hero, was strangled to death.

Officers with all the complicated and complex system of espionage and detection of which the Western world boasts, apparently have been utterly outwitted by the cunning of an Oriental, who evidently bungled badly for one of his race.

"We are just running down rumors," said Inspector McCafferty today. "All we are sure of in the case is this: Elsie Sigel was killed on June 3, between 10 a. m. and 12:30 p. m., in Leong Ling's room on Eighth avenue. Leon is the murderer, and perhaps during his stay in the house of detention, under police treatment for partial loss of memory, is an accomplice."

"We are hunting for nobody but Leon. Leon took the trunk to Newark, and arrived there about 2 o'clock in the morning of June 18. He got cabman James Halstead to bring the trunk to New York on the afternoon of the same day."

With this brief statement the information obtained by the search conducted by the police, is exhausted.

Didn't Realize Difficulty. It was the first time that the police confronted the secret machinations of the Chinese tong in a serious manner, in several years. The detectives had not measured the strength, cunning, and resourcefulness of the secret Oriental organizations.

The tong to which Leon belongs reaches with its bony fingers around the world. A secret archipelago, as well guarded that almost nothing is known, except that to the Chinese it is a great, silent, unseen force that deals in life and death and has as its object the overthrow of the empire.

There is a strong belief that Leon is a Chinese tong leader, which this tong operates in America are unknown to the police. Yet it is known that it is powerful and deeply entrenched in New York, New Orleans, Galveston, San Francisco, and other cities.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY UNKNOWN MAN

Fired Upon When He Attempts to Investigate Mysterious House.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Joseph Becker, a policeman, attached to the Parkville station, Brooklyn, was shot through the neck early today in front of a boarding house on Fifty-ninth street, when he and his partner, William Meyers, went to investigate what was variously reported as a hold-up, a mysterious shooting, and a black hand outrage.

The policeman was shot by some one from a window. Augustine Domitelli was arrested, charged with felonious assault. The policeman will recover.

When Becker fell, Meyers blew his whistle, and reserves surrounded the house, and took twelve prisoners, some of them women.

The police found $1,179 in bills in a stove in the basement, and to one would admit ownership of the money. A further search of the mysterious house is being made to ascertain the cause of the shooting, and what the inmates were trying to hide.

A Home Shampoo That Dries Quickly

(From the Ladies' Magazine.) You can have a more satisfactory shampoo at home than you can at your beauty specialist's—and it will cost 1 cent instead of $1.00—if you will just put a teaspoonful of canthox in a tea-cupful of hot water and stir until it is dissolved.

Take your shampoo by pouring the canthox solution on the hair and rubbing in well. As one girl said, "It makes a whole tubful of lather." After rinsing, the hair dries quickly, another advantage that will be appreciated by every woman.

In addition to thoroughly cleansing the scalp and hair, the canthox shampoo is soothing and beneficial. It makes the hair soft and buoyant, relieves itching and irritation of the scalp. Be sure to get canthox from your druggist in the original package.
